

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

After and Corn Doctors.
A bill is before the Massachusetts legislature which provides for a state commission for the regulation of chiropodists, and the sentiment in favor of it is so strong that it bids fair to become a law. A number of prominent chiropodists advocate the measure. A state commission, they believe, would protect the legitimate members of the profession and punish the pretenders. The business in Boston has become an important industry, for it was stated at a hearing that seventy-five persons are engaged in it legitimately, and that 100,000 Bostonians have corns which require treatment in the course of a year. This is a painful condition. Heretofore it has always been supposed that Boston was all brains, and it is a shock to find it has feet like Chicago.

Open All Winter.
The Missouri river has not been closed to navigation this winter, and it is not considered at all likely now that it will be. The river has only been closed once in the past four winters. Fifteen or twenty years ago the river was invariably closed by ice in December, and the records of between twenty and forty years ago show that it was never open during one winter.

Be sure you are right and then do not hesitate.

The Unkindest Cut of All.

As Shakespeare says, it is to poke us or sneer at people who are nervous, under a half-belief that their complaint is imaginary or an affection. It is neither, but a serious reality. Perfect digestion and assimilation of the food is a very common cause of nervousness, especially that distressing form of it which manifests itself in want of sleep. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters speedily remedies nervousness, as it also does malarial, kidney, bilious and rheumatic ailments. The weak gain vigor speedily through its use.

Almost Crazy.

THOUGHT HER CHILD WAS GOING TO DIE.
The Terrible Ordeal of a Mother—How Little Girl Almost Faded Away—Saved in the Nick of Time—A Story that will Touch the Heart of Every Mother.

From the Journal, Detroit, Mich.
A very grateful mother is Mrs. A. L. Hartness, of 678 Grand Avenue, Detroit, for the wonderful cure which her daughter has received by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Said Mrs. Hartness: "Yes, my daughter's life has been saved by using Pink Pills, thanks to a kind friend who recommended them to me."

"Blanche was sick for over three years. She had the care of the best physicians procurable, and no expense or trouble was spared to give her relief. She was so thin that she was fairly skin and bones, her digestion was out of order and she had the most awful headaches. We gave up all hope of her recovery. Her long, thin, listless face made me nearly half crazy, and we did every thing in our power to give her strength and induce her to take an interest in anything."

"One day a friend told me about the Pink Pills, and Mr. Hartness went down town and got three boxes. She had taken about one box, when, to my amazement, one morning I heard her playing on the piano. I could hardly believe it, for it had been over a year since the piano had been opened. 'Soon she began to take short rides on her bicycle, and soon she went singing around the house, our own happy, hearty little daughter once more.'"

"She thinks nothing of a spin on her wheel over to Mr. Clemens or Pontiac, and is as well as she ever was. 'I had a girl living at our house who was a great sufferer from impoverished blood, and who received instant and permanent relief from the use of one box of the pills.'"

"If this information can be of any use to help some poor sick one, it is given with the greatest of pleasure."

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills state that they are not a patent medicine, but a prescription used for many years by an eminent practitioner who produced the most wonderful results with them, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nervous system. Two fatal cases of almost every ill to which flesh is heir. They are entirely harmless and can be given to weak and sickly children with the greatest good and without the slightest danger. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Ohio for Yuls.

The new woman in Ohio finds that her responsibilities keep pace with her privileges. Some time ago Justice Brown of Cleveland decided that wives are legally responsible for the support of their husbands and families, provided the husbands are unable to furnish support. This is Ohio law, as the justice sees it. His decision is based upon an act passed in 1887. Naturally it is attracting much interest and comment. The case was that of a tailor who sued Marshall L. Shay and his wife for $22 balance due on a suit of clothes. Shay once was in active business and finally failed in it. The tailor was refused payment of his bill on the ground that Shay was insolvent. His lawyers insisted that Mrs. Shay, being the owner of property, was liable for her husband's debts. The court held the point well taken. Many similar suits will be brought in Cleveland now. This will cause the new woman to warn the tailor who makes her bloomers to make no trousers for her husband on credit.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. HOW ARE YOUR FENCES?

A Very Important Question with Farmers and Others Just Now.

Probably there is nothing that interests the land owner more at this time of the year than fencing. They are desirous of securing the very best article they can for the purpose they desire to use it for, and at the cheapest price going. While this is good business, price should not take the place of quality. In building a smooth wire fence you do not build it for temporary use but expect it to last you for years and to get this kind of an article it requires a certain amount of good material to make it.

The De Kalb Fence Co., of De Kalb, Ill., has the largest and most complete line of smooth wire fencing of any plant in the country. We desire particularly to call your attention to their goods and write them for a catalogue which they will mail you free.

No line of goods has grown so rapidly in demand or given such general satisfaction as the fencing manufactured by this company. Their steel web picket fence for lawn and yard purposes, their cabled field and hog fence for farm use, their cabled poultry, garden and rabbit fence for its use, are all they claim for them.

You will hardly do yourself justice if you do not thoroughly investigate their lines before placing your order.

GUSTAVE FLAUBERT.

He Was a Realist and Could Not Enjoy Life.

This nausea at his immediate surroundings was always a characteristic of Flaubert. Du Camp tells us that at Croisset he dreamed of travel in the east, and in the east he longed passionately for home, says the Fortnightly Review. The discontent he felt with everything around him was part of the desire for spaciousness, for freedom, that was the concomitant of his malady. Before he was 20 this nausea at life had already appeared. "It is strange," he writes to Du Camp in 1846, "that I should have been born with so little faith in happiness. When I was quite young I had a complete presentiment of life. It was like an odor of unpleasant cooking escaping by a vent hole. One does not need to have eaten of it to know that it will make one vomit." In a letter written when he was less than 18 to Ernest Chevalier we get the same curious mixture of irony and disgust—the distemper of Rousseau mingled with the laughter of Rabelais, that we find in his later life. "I dissect unceasingly; that amuses me, and when at last I have discovered corruption in what was thought pure, when I have found gangrene in some lovely thing, I lift up my head and laugh."

To Mme. X—he wrote in 1846: "I have never seen an infant without thinking that one day he would be an old man, nor a cradle without dreaming of a tomb. The contemplation of a woman gets me musing of her skeleton. It is on this account that joyful sights make me sad and sad ones scarcely affect me. . . . When I had a family I often wished I had it not in order to be more free, to go and live in China or among savages. Now that I no longer have a family I regret it and I cling to the walls where its shadow still lingers." Even on his travels he carried the same tendency to melancholy reverie and saw the world abroad, as he has seen it at home, under the same aspects of irony and stupidity. "The psychological human side is everywhere when one travels. One falls in with some splendid things, with existence dove-colored, brilliant to the eye, as diverse as rage and embroidery, rich with uncleanness, with rents and lace. And at the bottom there is always the old immovable and indestructible baseness. That is the base." It was this ironic disgust at life that made him collect all the instances he could find of human imbecility for his dossier de la bêtise humaine, the material out of which "Fouvard et Peuchet" was afterward constructed.

GODFREY'S TANKARD.

Historical Relic Sold at Auction in London Recently.

A curious historical relic was sold by auction recently in London, says the Boston Herald. It is the large tankard of solid silver presented by King Charles II. to Sir Edmund Berry Godfrey for his valuable services during the plague and the fire of London, for which he received the honor of knighthood in 1666. The tankard, which is of plain silver, has a hinged cover and weighs nearly thirty-six ounces. Its front is engraved with the royal arms and the crest of the recipient, together with inscriptions in Latin and engravings of scenes connected with the fire, which are still in excellent preservation. The engraving of the pesthouse men carrying corpses to the dismal plague pit, and that of the crowded blocks of houses surrounded by flames, are very quaint and curious. Sir Edmund, who was born in 1621, at Sellingle, in Kent, was a timber merchant possessing wharves at Dowgate City and at Charing Cross. He prospered, became justice of the peace for Westminster and member of parliament for Winchester. In history, as no reader of Macaulay and Green will need to be told, his name is most famous in connection with his mysterious murder, which was popularly attributed to the zeal with which he had devoted himself to unraveling the Polish plot. His body was found in a ditch near Primrose hill, face downward, and penetrated by his own sword, under circumstances which precluded the idea of suicide or robbery. The excitement caused by this mysterious event is indicated by the fact that when the funeral procession left the city with great pomp and pageant for the burial ground of St. Martin-in-the-Field, it was preceded by seventy clergy and followed by upward of 1,000 persons of distinction.

A Wasteful Ten Dollar Bill.

A thin plate of silver has recently been forwarded to the authorities of the redemption department of the treasury at Washington in the surface of which a ten dollar certificate had been pressed in such a way that it had become incorporated with the metal. A statement accompanied it to the effect that a workman in a silversmith's factory had accidentally dropped the bill upon the plate of silver while the latter was passing through a rolling machine. This explanation being satisfactory, a fresh ten dollar bill was sent to the loser.

Cromwell's Nose.

Oliver Cromwell was, unfortunately, endowed with a very big and painfully red nose. This circumstance gave rise to many nicknames. He was called "the Almighty Nose," "The Nose of Old England," "The Copper-Nosed Saint," together with other names more descriptive than polite.
